New Writing Development

“With musical theatre, although there are rules, they’re so different to the ones I feel like I have accidentally been ingrained with writing pop music. The main point is to tell the story. You just have to make sure the character’s voice is strong and the storytelling is strong.” - Sara Bareilles

Writing a new musical is never an easy task. You need to treat your idea, story, music or characters as your own children. It might very well take eighteen years for your child to grow up and be ready to be put on on a professional stage. To be a single parent might get pretty intimidating at times. We at Harjanne Company Ltd are here for you to help you develop and nurture your idea and material, and to help you take it even further.

If you are interested in a new original musical in your theatre’s repertoire, we offer our services to form a team to develop an original musical that meets your wants and needs. We offer:

- Strategic consultancy for your project
- Creative development for your script, score, synopsis, characters, dramaturgy and concept
- Creative writer’s management to ensure that the new production meets the deadlines and artistic goals of your theatre
- Dramaturgical services for any parts of your project
- Creative minds for you to add to your writing process, or to consult you further with your new project.
